ARCHAEOLOGICAL RESOURCE
 Original island progressively reduced by quarrying. Earlier features including tunnel (powder gallery) may be expected to survive. Also 1850's cottage site.

SCAPREANCE:
 Macquarie Pier is associated with the genesis of Newcastle, its changing occupation and uses strongly linked to phases in the development of the city and port.

HISTORY OF OCCUPATION
 Convicts stationed on the island as places of punishment, and during construction of the Macquarie Pier which linked the island to the mainland in 1841. Island progressively modified by quarrying, which reduced its height and altered its form. During the 1850s proposals submitted to remove the island by blasting. A tunnel or powder gallery was excavated for this purpose but not used. 1858 - Lighthouse, cottages and signal station built.
